How to replicate experiment results

To replicate the results recorded in the experiments section of the report, you can run the br_classification_gridsearch.py and br_classification.py files as specified in the manual.pdf document.

As mentioned in the report, the solution uses neural networks whose performance is affected by the hardware it is trained on. As a result of this, the performance metric results may slightly differ depending on the hardware used on the training device